METROPOLIS IN THE MIST

Five fractured districts drifting shrouded in the ether, grinding against each other like broken teeth.

Five shattered pieces, one ugly whole: Dimm City.

Its citizens call themselves Dimmers. They claw out a life among alien junk, street magic, corporate predators, gutter cults, black markets, and creatures too stubborn to stay dead.

You and your pack are here to take what you can and level what you can't.

Every session is a Dream. What you do during it matters. Make enemies. Break bones. Trade favors. Dig up what should've stayed buried. Leave fresh corpses in ditches and teeth in somebody else's floor.

What happens in your Dream doesn't disappear when you wake up.

So get in there. Get filthy. Lose something important. Crawl out with something worse.

The Dream ends. Dimm City holds a grudge.

CREATUREPUNK

CREATUREPUNK is what happens when evolution takes a sledgehammer to the face and the survivors crawl out growling.

You're spliced-up, hex-stained, glitch-ridden, stitched together with scavenged tech, gutter magic, and leftovers from wars nobody won. Your kind's been running the monoverse since before humanity finger-painted on cave walls.

The city don't love you. The corps don't see you. The gods don't pick up.

Good. That makes you dangerous.

Creaturepunk is meat you can modify, magic you can weaponize, and technology you can rip apart and bolt back together weird. Bodies change. Species mingle. Civilizations rot.

Something new always crawls out of the wreckage.

You're one of those things. Welcome to CREATUREPUNK. Get weird or get wrecked.